Jeffrey Lieberman was appointed to the Foundation Board of Directors of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity in 2006. He is the second-youngest Beta to serve on the Foundation Board. Lieberman is managing director of Insight Venture Partners, a leading venture capital firm that specializes in investing in global software and technology enabled services companies. He currently serves as a director of WebSite Pros, KWI International, Cadence Network, and Paisley Consulting. Previously, Lieberman was a consultant at McKinsey & Company, where he focused on strategic and operational issues in the financial services, technology and consumer products industries.

As an undergraduate at the University of Pennsylvania, he was chapter president, treasurer and steward. Lieberman was a delegate at the 155th General Convention (1994.) He received dual degrees in systems engineering and finance from the Pennsylvania's Moore School of Engineering and the Wharton School of Business, respectively.

Lieberman lives in NYC with his wife Holly Fogle, a Penn State Chi Omega.
